

"A Strange Distance"

Our sounds separate,
Like the waves we are;
Clinging to a brisk wind.
On some quiet shore-
Between oceans and sails,
Our lapping is considered-
By the lonely man on the pier;
Coveting his bourbon-
And weeping at the waves-
Pounding their heads against-
A strange distance.

©Jacob R. Gorham