

The Universal Intelligence Network: Think Net—because a thought can change the world

Important announcement: I have begun something important with a very specific focus. Those of you with scientific and creative skills may wish to join me. Please read the "UIN: Think Net" mission statement below to assess the value of this proposition:

The Universal Intelligence Network is an organization founded by Rich Norman and Anja Jaenicke for the purpose of collecting iconoclastic intellectual talent under the banner of cooperative endeavor, in an attempt to solve the pressing problems of our age.

"In this world built up from every right handed error, perhaps the truth is what's left?"

Superior ability is worth little unless it is applied to specific problems. This is not an IQ group, or a social group, but a think tank: Think Net. You are welcome if you have a creative intellect with a working knowledge of neuroscience, physics, psychology, chemistry, mathematics, medicine, biology, engineering of any sort, or any other vital area which could really matter. It is my intention to find original solutions to difficult and vital problems, and then, give the information away to benefit all. We can make a difference:

"Think Net—because a thought can change the world."

It is my intention to collect and/or generate complete research proposals and then submit them for proposed funding to those monetary sources which are appropriate for more radical submissions, which must sadly, and necessarily, remain outside of the current governmental channels of allocation. These proposals will benefit from a media presentation to gain the targeted "altruist's" attention, a prospect which will in no small part be aided by the administrations of the highly intelligent and talented Anja Jaenicke, myself, and the Mind magazine staff artists.

What problems are worthy fodder for the most intelligent minds?...the most difficult problems...the ones that matter! Do not misunderstand me, this is intellectual adventure and pleasure of the highest order! Can you solve...this? Challenge and pleasure! We are here to harvest vacuum energy; define nonlocal connectivity and the nonlocal field interactions via quantum experiment; define the relation between unconscious functioning, nonlocality and linear probability outcomes; define the relation between creative, neural and quantum processes; define the precise relation between dynamic epigenetic encoding of DNA via proposed vortex theory (Meyl), yielding the magnetic "scalar wave," and the relation to biophotonic (Popp) and other field activity; define quantum gravity with precision; determine the mechanism by which immune response allows cancer to develop and how that may be ameliorated; discover and experimentally demonstrate psychological factors and associated interactive neural circuitry which influence Parkinson's; find a functional unified field theory which unites quantum aspects along with relativity; define by quantitative means the state of mental illness and unconscious mentation, or, any other vital new thing!...in short: we are to think about the most interesting things on the planet, and with each other's help...solve those problems.

Competition is laughable, for there is no man or woman on this earth who could solve THESE problems alone! Those who compete will now, as always, be run into the ground. Competition yields one thing for our race: greed, and its attendant filth, sickness and degeneration. Observe the state of man...run headlong and nose first into the dirt, just as he should be. Nothing else is appropriate. Look at history, so filled with blood and boasting. That is one thing—competition—stupidity itself! Anti-value. This site and this forum are above that. This is a cooperative forum. Cooperation...this is worthy, entanglement is the physical basis of time, and all things. Entanglement is power. Competition, secrecy, nationalism and the closed heart, are why we are in pain, sick and unworthy of help. Man, as he exists today, does not deserve to flourish. No such man is welcome here.

"Let us pluck loose a thought from our self-importance, and proclaim aloud, and as a boast: We."

You are welcome here: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/360912304056377/> I have posted a few topics and theories to get things going. Please check the Files menu on the site. Please feel free to add your own problems for discussion, and your own theories. The group is sure to have abilities amongst its members which you as an individual do not. In this way, difficult problems can be solved, and all will benefit. Once this group is established, I will create an official membership role for the Universal Intelligence Network, and move the Think Net think tank to a private password protected site, where discussions will be held. All admissions must be approved through myself or Anja. Welcome to Think Net. I encourage you to assist us all in creating something better. Soon we will find something worthy, another way...our future province—and awakening. Nothing less than that.

Think Net: because a thought... can change the world.—Rich Norman Mind Magazine www.mindmagazine.net Send email through the staff contact page.

This work is the sole property of the author, Rich Norman © 2014 and is used by this forum with both permission and gratitude.