

"Grip"

The trees weep these-golden leaves.
With only the bitter wind-
To sing to them.

The ripples on the pond-
Beckon the shore.
With only mossy stones-
To crack their fragile bones.

These people who cry out-
Reach for a sunken sun.
With only a bitter cold-
And themselves to hold.

©Jacob R. Gorham